Potato Is King.

Each fall, for two weeks, the public schools of Alameda, are closed that the children may go out on the surrounding farms and help gather the tubers. Efforts have been made on several occasions to sidetrack this vacation, but it always succeeds in keeping the main line. Teachers dislike to give up work and go home after working a month, or stay around for two weeks just waiting. The only help we can see for them is to do their pajamas and take away to the fields and assist in the harvest. A teacher of a school could earn a dollar a day and be able to say nothing of the exercise and botany lessons he would gain. anyhow the parents of the Alameda children, by a vote of 42 to 21, say that we shall have such a vacation and it is at hand.

Looking For Poor Farm Site.

The county board committee which was appointed for the purpose of investigating the matter of a new site for the poor farm, held a meeting at the court house on Monday. They had taken a trip out into the country and looked over some obtainable sites and were very favorably impressed with what they saw. While they have not made any statement in the matter, it is probable that a new farm will be purchased and the property now owned by the county disposed of. If the present property is kept it would be necessary to invest considerable money in the erection of buildings, and they feel that the site is not what is wanted at the present location and are against establishing anything permanent.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the committee on the County Training school for teachers, of the County Board of Wood County, will meet at the Court House in the City of Grand Rapids, Wisconsin, Tuesday, October 3rd, 1906, at 2 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of considering a recommendation as to the location and building for said school, an appropriation therefor, and any other matter or thing in relation thereto, that may properly come before such committee. The committee will be pleased to receive any proposition, recommendation, or advice in relation to such school from any person or locality. Dated Oct. 1st, 1906. By order of the Committee, A. E. Gerner, Chairman.

Football Saturday.

On Saturday afternoon at the fair grounds, the Grand Rapids high school eleven will play the Stevens Point Normal team. These are the same teams that played a score of 0 to 0 at Stevens Point last Saturday and it is expected that it will be a hotly contested game. Be on hand at 3 o'clock p. m.

PLAYED A TIE GAME.

Local Football Team Holds Down the Normal Eleven at Stevens Point.

The high school football team from this city played the Normal team at Stevens Point on Saturday afternoon and at the end of the second half the score was 0 to 0.

The local team naturally feels somewhat elated over being able to hold down a team that was older and heavier than themselves. Those who saw the game said that the local team outplayed the Stevens Pointers somewhat. The following is from the Stevens Point Journal concerning the game:

The first football game of the season between the Normal and Grand Rapids High school teams, was called shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon. Grand Rapids had the ball and cast goal. Arpin kicked about twenty-five yards. The Normal team started down the field rapidly until Grand Rapids took a brace and three times compelled the Normals to punt. This kept the ball in the victor's territory most of the first half. Grand Rapids seemed to be the quicker of the two teams and made its gains by straight football, once being compelled to punt. The score at the end of the first half stood 0 to 0.

In the second half neither side scored. The game was very poorly attended, though the spectators were much amused after each play.

The line-up follows:

Stevens Point	vs	Grand Rapids
Burns	rt	Early
Olsen	rt	Danion
Carlton	rg	Bantz
Brace	c	Smith
Brooks	lg	Johl
Keld	lt	Halse
Jones	le	G. Arpin
Hill	qb	Chose
Moffitt	thb	Grossus
Weinmann	rthb	Corcoran
McDill	fb	H. Arpin

Subs—Normal, Mortell, Little; Grand Rapids, Hill, Hanson, Voyer. Officials—Corran, referee; J. N. Davis, umpire.

Stock Fair Tuesday.

Next Tuesday, Oct. 10th, is the date of the next stock fair, which will be held on the market square on the west side. The merchants have donated a number of prizes for the occasion, which are as follows:

For the best sample of potatoes brought to his place, John Holmstrom will give an 8 lb. of beer.

Strang and Perinski will also give an 8 lb. of beer for the best sample of potatoes brought to their place on fair day.

Johnson & Hill offer 25 pounds of sugar to the lady bringing the largest number of eggs to their store on fair day.

Gross & Lyons offer the choice of their trimmed hats to the lady winning the egg race, distance 30 yards.

Timms & Briere offer a combination suit of underwear to the lady bringing the largest and heaviest head of cabbage to their store.

The Central Hardware Co. will give a $1.50 krait cutter to the person selling the best fresh milk cow on the grounds.

Gross & Lyons will give a 50 pound sack of the best patent flour to the farmer winning the 50 yard dash.

Judges—Will Gross and Garry Mason.

John Bull reports that there is a demand for several fresh milk cows in the city, also for a number of horses.

Bryan to Speak in Wisconsin This Fall.

William Jennings Bryan will participate in the Wisconsin campaign for the election of John A. Aylward for governor.

Definite announcement to this effect was received today by Chairman Herbert H. Mason of the Democratic state central committee, from Mr. Bryan, who said he would come to Wisconsin before the campaign was over.

Just when Mr. Bryan will be here is not announced in the correspondence so far received but it is not the expectation of Mr. Mason that the Nebraska leader will be here much before the end of this month.

How long Mr. Bryan will be in Wisconsin is also not yet known, but he will be here for more than one engagement and it is possible that he will be in the state as long as three days.

Just as soon as it is definitely known how long Mr. Bryan will be here arrangement will be made for his schedule in the state, and if his stay is for three days, the program will be so arranged as to give him opportunity to make speeches in the largest cities of the state.

Got Ten Days.

Bert Austin is serving a ten day sentence in the county jail as the result of having entered the second Moravian church one day and disturbing a religious meeting that was in progress. Bert seems to be unable to behave himself and as a consequence has served several short terms in jail for fool offenses that he has committed.

Registration Day.

Tuesday, Oct. 9 and Oct. 30 will be registration days at the different voting precincts and persons who are figuring on voting at the coming election are notified that they should get their names in.

City Council Meeting.

The common council met on Tuesday evening in regular session, Mayor Wheeler presiding. Most of the business disposed of was regular routine work such as hearing reports of street and waterworks committees and allowing bills, etc.

E. W. Ellis presented his resignation as supervisor from the eighth ward and same was accepted. B. R. Grogins was elected to fill the vacancy.

Two petitions were presented concerning the city hall which it is proposed to erect on the east side. One of these petitions asked that the construction of the city hall at its present location be discontinued and the other that the work be carried forward without delay. As the case is now pending in circuit court the petitions probably do not count very much of their way, as each had a large number of signers.

A communication from the school board asked that the sum of $30,000 be raised for school purposes the coming year. The amount was placed at $27,000 by the council.

The amount of taxes that will have to be raised the coming year will be $52,500, according to the estimate of the mayor.

WON TWO GAMES.

Grand Rapids Baseball Team Scores Two Shutouts Over Berlin Last Week.

The Grand Rapids Baseball team wound up their seasons work last week in a glorious manner, shutting out Berlin in two straight games, the contest on Thursday being 8 to 0 and on Friday 5 to 0.

Gornley pitched for the home team on Thursday and those that saw the game said that he put up a good game all the way thru. The lineup of the game on Thursday consisted of: Powell, Dulin, Weckler, Springer, Kreutz, McDonnell, Martenson, Hetzel and Gornley.

On Friday Barlow pitched for the home team and he also put up a star game. The lineup on Friday was: Powell, Dulin, Weckler, Kreutz, Martenson, Stratton, Gornley, Hetzel and Barlow.

For Clerk of Circuit Court.

We present herewith a picture of L. E. Colvin of Pittsville, who is the democratic nominee for clerk of the circuit court. We want every democrat in Wood County to vote for Mr. Colvin and enough republicans to show that there is no ill feeling on either side. There is no doubt but what Mr. Colvin is a man who is well fitted to fill the place for which he has been selected by his party, and when a vote is cast for him the voter may feel sure that he has done his share toward electing a competent man.

Mr. Colvin is a resident of Pittsville, and notwithstanding the fact that he was a democrat in a city where democrats are as scarce as hen's teeth, he was elected to the office of mayor of the city for three terms, showing that the people who know him best have perfect confidence in his integrity and ability. He also held the position of postmaster for one term and was poor commissioner for eight years.

Mr. Colvin is well and favorably known throughout the county and there is no doubt but what his friends will be in evidence when the votes are counted on election night.

Opens with Forty Pupils.

The Northwest Collegiate Institute opened at Sherry on Sept. 12 and at present has an enrollment of 40 students, both young men and women recruited from over a wide territory, there are students there from New York, New Jersey and other distant states, who have heard of the ideals and aims of the new school. The faculty consists of: Ralph Melvin Smith, B. A., president of Eynette academy from 1903 to 1904, president and eight other members, including a practicing physician, the farm overseer and a business manager. The business manager is Rev. William J. Agnew. It is one of the aims of this school to furnish young people with the opportunity to earn their way through college. It is located on a large tract of agricultural land situated at some little distance from the Sherry railroad station.

Teachers Entertain.

The teachers of the high school entertained the other teachers of the city and their friends on Friday night at the Lincoln school, and there was a very pleasant time. There were readings and music, and the high school orchestra was in attendance, and after the other exercises, those present spent a short time in dancing.

TRAINING SCHOOL.

Committee Meets at Courthouse Monday to Hear Offers From Different Places.

At the last meeting of the county board a committee was appointed for the purpose of looking up a site for the Wood County Teachers Training School, and also to find what the different places in the county had to offer for the school in the way of a site, and other advantages. The committee consisted of Messrs. Gerner, Richstedt and Peterson and these gentlemen held a meeting at the courthouse on Monday afternoon on which occasion there were a number of gentlemen present from this city as well as Marshfield to talk on the matter.

Among those present were Otto J. Lea of Alford, E. M. Henning and O. G. Lindeman of Marshfield and Geo. M. Hill and L. M. Nash of this city. The delegation from this city made the offer of six or eight acres of land as a site for the school, the same as had been done before. The Marshfield delegation apparently had nothing to offer, as they made no offer, and seemed to be rather anxious to have the meeting adjourned.

Otto J. Lea addressed the meeting at some length, and after explaining that he had been the first one to suggest the establishment of a training school in the county, showing that he was in sympathy with the movement, went on to tell what he considered some of the shortcomings of the school. One of these was the fact that a scholar who had completed the eighth grade in a common school could enter the training school and after spending one year there could receive a certificate that would entitle her to teach for 3 years, and a scholar who had gone to a city school and graduated from the high school course, and consequently had three years more of learning, might not be able to obtain a third grade certificate, as had been the case in the past. He thought that this was wrong, and that the training school graduate should be compelled to take the same examination as the high school graduate, for in his opinion the high school graduate had a better education than the one who was permitted to teach.

After hearing the talk on the subject of pupils being graduated from young from the training school the register of the school was examined and it was found that the average of the pupils who have been given a diploma at that institution is nineteen and one half years, which is somewhat older than the average age of high school graduates.

The Marshfield people present seemed to be inclined to question the ability of the city of Grand Rapids to give a clear title to the land on which they offer to the school, but those present from this city were of the opinion that there would be no trouble from this source.

Resolution of Respect.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in his wise Providence to remove from our midst to the higher life our beloved and esteemed sister, Mary Mulroy and whereas, while we bow in humble submission to the will of the Supreme Ruler of this universe, we realize that in the loss of our sister, our order has been bereft of a beloved sister, and the community of a useful, upright member. Therefore be it Resolved that our flag and charter be draped in mourning for thirty days and that we express our deep sorrow to the afflicted family in their time of mourning, and be it further resolved that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our corps records, and also that they be published in the city newspapers and a copy thereof be presented to the family.

Dated Sept. 27, 1906.

A fire occurred in the home of Wm. Love on Sunday, which destroyed some clothes belonging to Mr. Love, Mr. and Mrs. Love were at church when the fire was discovered, and were at a loss to account for its origin. Mr. Love had been up stairs just before leaving the house and thought that possibly he might have stepped on some garment that had some matches in the pocket, thus starting the fire.

Two Cars of Honey.

Marshfield News. Leo E. Hennigan representing the St. Croix Valley Beekeepers association, shipped from here this week two cars of honey, some of which was made in this section. The honey is of first quality and the two carloads represented a big sum of money.

Apron Sale.

The Woman's Relief Corps will give an apron sale and a fifteen cent supper at the G. A. R. hall on Tuesday October 9th. Supper will be ready at five o'clock.

Kellogg-Schantz.

Elliot Kellogg of Nekoma and Miss Kathryn Schantz of Stevens Point were married last Wednesday at Stevens Point at St. Stephens' church, Rev. W. A. Rice performing the ceremony. The couple were attended by Miss Georgia Kellogg and Edward Schantz. Only relatives of the contracting parties were in attendance, those present from this city being Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kellogg and Misses Georgia and Katie Kellogg.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served and the happy couple left soon afterward on a wedding tour to be gone a couple of weeks, and upon their return they will make their home at Nekoma.

Mr. Kellogg is well known in this city, being a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kellogg, and formerly made his home here, but for a number of years past has had charge of the Kellogg Bros. Lumber yards at Nekoma, and is an industrious and reliable young man who will no doubt make his way in the world. The bride formerly taught school in Nekoma and is a most estimable young lady.

The Tribune wishes their many friends in extending the heartiest of congratulations.

Again Working at Church.

The Baptist people are again working on their church and have already laid quite a number of the concrete blocks that will form the main part of the edifice, and the indications are that the church will present a handsome appearance when completed. The blocks are being made by the Grand Rapids Hollow Concrete Stone Wall Co., and persons who have examined the output of this concern state that it is first class in every respect.

The New Daily.

The Daily Reporter made its first appearance in this city on Monday, and has since been coming out on a schedule time. The paper is a seven column paper, neatly printed and well filled with news and advertisements. There is reason to believe that in its situation of this kind may be made to pay in this city and the editors of the same seem to be starting out in the right manner. The Tribune wishes the new enterprise success.

A Good Show.

Those who attended the production of Quincey Adams Sawyer at the opera house last week pronounced it first class in every respect, one of the best that has been here for some time. The fact that it had been presented here once before probably kept the attendance somewhat smaller than it otherwise would have been.

Will Start the Campaign.

The republican nominees held a meeting in this city on Tuesday and decided that they would at once start in on an active campaign to be continued until the end of the season, which occurs on election day. They expect to hold meetings in all the principal burghs of the county.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Charlie Dixon to Martha Hintz both of Nekoma.
Herman Horberg of Hanson to Bertha Hahn of the town of Wood.
Mary Stahler of Marshfield to Chas. Hegerman of Chicago, Ill.
Fay E. West of Pittsville to Ed E. Peterson of Sherry.

The Leading Daily Paper of Wisconsin.

The Milwaukee Journal is offered for the next few weeks with the Tribune for $2.50 per week. Think of it! A metropolitan daily paper and your own local paper for only $2.50. Bring your subscription to the Tribune office before this chancing offer is withdrawn.

Men Who Gamble In the clothes they buy.

Will lose at every turn, unless they can tell fabric, or are perfectly familiar with the few good clothes makers in America.

You don't get all-wool clothing many places because the high price of wool just at present is a great temptation to tailors and clothing dealers to use material with (a little) cotton in them. To be frank—"mercerized" cotton; and these same people are selling suits labeled "all-wool." We not only label our suits all-wool but we go so far as to guarantee them all-wool.

A mercerized cotton suit, one that the man tells you is as good as you can get, is the suit you'll notice nowadays which attains a very sad look after a very short time of wear. This in other words will tell you why we persist in calling attention to HART, SCHAFFNER & MARX suits, and SOLOMAN BROS. & LAMPERT'S overcoats they are all-wool and all right.

PERUNA PRAISED.

MRS. ESTHER M. MILNER.

Box 321, DeGraff, Ohio.
Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.
Dear Sir:—

I was a terrible sufferer from pericarditis and had headache continuously. I was not able to do any housework for myself and husband. I wrote you and described my condition as nearly as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles of it and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine and have recommended it to my friends with the very best of results.

Esther M. Milner.
Very few of the great multitude of women who have been relieved of some of the most distressing and dangerous ailments by Peruna ever consent to give a testimonial to be read by the public.

Therefore, however, a few courageous and self-sacrificing women who will for the sake of their suffering sisters allow their names to be published.

Mrs. Milner is one of these. In her gratefulness for her restoration to health she is willing that the women of the whole world should know it. A chronic invalid brought back to health is no small matter. Words are inadequate to express complete gratitude.

Dispensing with Walters.
Automatic cars have become so successful in Switzerland that a company has been formed to supply the Swiss and their visitors with electric automobiles to restaurants, where, as if by magic, meals will be served by electricity to all comers. The only thing necessary is to take your seat, alight over the hill of fare, place your money in the right slot, and the machinery does the rest.

"CHILI" or "CHILL."
There have been many arguments during the last few weeks as to whether the name of the earthquake-smitten country should be spelled "Chili" or "Chile." Chile is the Spanish name and "Chili" is the name commonly explained as an old Peruvian word for snow, the allusion being to the Andes; but "Chili" has also been identified as a native South American word, "chilli" meaning cold—which would make it really the "chilly" country. As to the meaning of "Ondes," there is plenty of choice. The word has been variously interpreted as signifying the hump of the tapir, the region of copper, the home of the Andes and the site of the "Ondes." Spanish gardeners on the mountain terraces.

Hunters Mauled by Lionsess.
A fight between two hunters and an infuriated lioness is reported from British East Africa.

Messrs. Lyons and Goldfinch left Nairobi on a shooting expedition, and when five miles from the town the lioness was observed.

While the men stood at the edge of the thicket the brute pounced on Mr. Goldfinch and threw him to the ground. It bit him on the thigh before Mr. Lyons loosed a bullet in its neck.

Maddened by the wound, the animal turned its attention to Mr. Lyons, whose horse it killed and then pinned the rider to the ground, inflicting lacerations on his face and biting his right arm. He was saved by Mr. Goldfinch, who, sitting up, shot the lioness with a well-aimed shot.

The beast was about to spring on its victim again when another discharge from the same weapon proved fatal. The wounded men were taken back to town, where they received medical aid.

THE WAY OUT.
Change of Food Brought Success and Happiness.

An ambitious but delicate girl, after failing to go through school on account of nervousness and hysteria, found in Grape-Nuts the only thing that seemed to build her up and furnish her the peace of health.

"From infancy," she says, "I have not been strong. Being ambitious to learn at any cost I finally got to the High School, but soon had to abandon my studies on account of nervous prostration and hysteria."

"My mother and I got along with me. I grew thin and despondent. I could not enjoy the simplest social affair for I suffered constantly from nervousness in spite of all sorts of medicines."

"This wretched condition continued until I was twenty-five, when I became interested in the letters of those who had eaten like mine and who were being cured by eating Grape-Nuts."

"I had little faith, but procured a box and after the first dish I experienced a peculiar satisfied feeling that I had never gained from any ordinary food. I slept and rested better that night and in a few days began to grow stronger."

"I had a new feeling of peace and restfulness. In a few weeks, to my great joy, the headaches and nervousness left me and life became bright and hopeful. I resumed my studies and later taught ten months with ease."

"Of course, I eat Grape-Nuts every day. It is now four years since I began to use Grape-Nuts. I am the mistress of a happy home and the old weakness has never returned." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," a page.

THE NEW SUPER

A CHEMICAL STORY
By E. F. STEARNS.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

This all happened about five years ago—yes, it's just five years this month that Otis died.

Say, he was the man to run an acid works. He was super here in the acid works for 12 years running, and there wasn't one fault found with him by the boss or by the men, which is just about as important, if not a little bit more so.

One day, about two weeks after the death of Otis, the boss turned up with Rigby, a mean little boy, maybe 22 or 23, narrow-chested, hatchet-faced, green from college and with an opinion of himself that would have broken down an ordinary man's constitution to carry.

"Mr. Rigby," the boss announced to the men, "represents the younger generation of chemists. He has all the newest wrinkles in acid manufacture at his command, and I think he'll make some improvements here."

Next Monday morning, Rigby came in for business the first time. "Say, it would have made your heart ache to see that strut! First he'd stride through the whole place with his hands behind his back and a superior smile on his wizen little face, looking this way and that way, like a bantam rooster out for a fight. Then he'd stamp upstairs to the office Otis had had so long, and throw papers around for a while."

Shortly after 10 a boy came in with a cargo of beer, and downstairs he flew to Brown, the shipping clerk and general manager of the office.

"Brown," he said, "there's beer drinking going on here!"

"Can it be?" said Brown.

"It is!" announced the boy. "I'll put a short stop to that. To-night, Brown, you will discharge any man you know to be a chronic beer-drinker."

"What shall we do for men?" asked Brown.

"Oh, see here!" cried Rigby, very sharp and impatient, "how many men out of the 30 will you have to discharge?"

"Thirty," said Brown.

"Ah—huh—murmured Rigby. "They'll take another course. Make a sign, Brown: 'Beer drinking prohibited.'"

"What under the sun is the matter?" he demanded of Brown.

"Too many signs," snickered Brown. "The last of them being the most responsible."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, to put it another way, want of coal is keeping us from running."

"Confound it!" shouted the boss. "You had 60 tons last week. What's Rigby doing with it? Eating it?"

"I haven't seen him at it," said Brown, speaking slowly and distinctly and enjoying every word. "But he forbade any man to touch the pile without his permission, and he hasn't been here since yesterday noon. The boilers were cold at six o'clock."

"Brown, Brown, Brown!" growled the old man. "Had you no more sense than to blow off your orders like that?"

"Why, bless me!" said Brown, looking at him squarely with his innocent old eyes. "Isn't it one of the new notions? One of the latest wrinkles in acid manufacture? I'm doing my best to cooperate."

"What under the sun is this?" he said, pointing to the new sign and then to the others, with his cane. "What are they doing here?"

"Well—" said the boss. And there he had to stop, for the situation was too much for even his extended vocabulary.

When he got breath he said: "There's another sign in your hand, Brown. What is it?"

"Well—oh, that?" stammered Brown going red.

"Let's see it," said the boss. "Whatever it is, heaven knows it can be no worse than the others."

"In Memoriam
RIGBY
A lovely apparition, sent
To be a moment's ornament."
Si monumentum queris, circumspice.

"And is this by Rigby's orders, too?" asked the boss, with a grin.

"Hardly," said Brown.

"Brown," said the boss, "you have a propitious star. The gods have given the contribution to this galaxy of insanity. I'll be highly appropriate within the next five minutes. Tack it up so I'll stick, Brown."

Then he made for the stairs. From that day to this, not one of us ever laid eyes on Rigby; and some of the boys still say that the governor, the frightful wrath that possessed him, killed and ate the boy, blood, bones and all, right there in Otis's office.

Religion Essential to Nature of Man

By REV. W. A. WATERMAN.

main, having its necessity in the moral constitution.

A non-religious man is abnormal, only a high grade animal at his best. Church, Bible, and priest come to man as his friends to enlighten, inspire, and unfold to him his nature and aid him in maintaining normal state and relations. Men are not released from moral and religious obligations by keeping out of church and worship. Religious obligations came not by churches' creed, Bible, or priest; these came after the moral constitution was created.

The Bible is God's handbook of religion. Break down the book, sweep away its history, story, and chronology, as some are trying to do, and think they have, you do not touch, much less destroy, the authority and obligations of religion. Religion is not a superfluity. Religious living is the normal condition of man. Law abiding is the normal state of the citizen.

highness. "Unscrow the governor, and for heaven's sake, do it quick!"

And after Danny went out Rigby connected himself with the speaking tube again.

"Make a sign, Brown," he said, "telling the men that our whistle is jiggling—that a word—and that for the ensuing three weeks, until our own is thoroughly cured, they will listen for the whistles of adjacent factories. Put it on the same spot."

"There's no room," Brown chuckled. "Then take another spot. There's plenty of spots," said Rigby, going back to his newspaper.

Danny got another little idea, too. He'd a man to cart out ashes and bring the coal from the pile in a big shotgun wheelbarrow, and the way lay over the cobblestones under the window of Otis Rigby's office.

Just before Otis died, he bought Danny a fine new wheelbarrow for the purpose, for the old one was loose in the joints and pretty rickety generally, and when a man was pushing her she sounded more than anything else like a carload of tinware being struck by lightning.

But two or three days after the whistle stopped work, Danny—he's a tender-hearted fellow—Danny got a sentimental feeling for the old wreck and brought her out of the scrap heap and set his freeman wheelbarrow, ashed, back and forth, back and forth, back and forth, till the dim sent Rigby to the speaking-tube once more.

"Brown," he cried, "what on earth nicks that wheelbarrow?"

"Time of age," answered Brown. "Well, does it have to make that noise?"

"The poor thing can't speak and tell us," chuckled the old gentleman. "I presume it does."

"Well, it's enough to drive a man mad," said Rigby. "I'll have it stopped, except when I'm out on this office. Listen! You make another sign, reading like this: 'Workmen are positively prohibited from caring coal and ashes without obtaining permission from the superintendent.' Nail it up."

Another sign! muttered Brown. Rigby didn't come back for some time, but he sent a boy to Brown with a note, saying that he had a severe headache, and would the factory kindly try to run without him till the following morning.

He took his time getting there, and by the time he finally did arrive the boss had come in in a fury.

"What under the sun is the matter? Why is the factory shut down?" he demanded of Brown.

"Too many signs," snickered Brown. "The last of them being the most responsible."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, to put it another way, want of coal is keeping us from running."

"Confound it!" shouted the boss. "You had 60 tons last week. What's Rigby doing with it? Eating it?"

"I haven't seen him at it," said Brown, speaking slowly and distinctly and enjoying every word. "But he forbade any man to touch the pile without his permission, and he hasn't been here since yesterday noon. The boilers were cold at six o'clock."

"Brown, Brown, Brown!" growled the old man. "Had you no more sense than to blow off your orders like that?"

"Why, bless me!" said Brown, looking at him squarely with his innocent old eyes. "Isn't it one of the new notions? One of the latest wrinkles in acid manufacture? I'm doing my best to cooperate."

"What under the sun is this?" he said, pointing to the new sign and then to the others, with his cane. "What are they doing here?"

"Well—" said the boss. And there he had to stop, for the situation was too much for even his extended vocabulary.

"Well—oh, that?" stammered Brown going red.

"Let's see it," said the boss. "Whatever it is, heaven knows it can be no worse than the others."

"In Memoriam
RIGBY
A lovely apparition, sent
To be a moment's ornament."
Si monumentum queris, circumspice.

"And is this by Rigby's orders, too?" asked the boss, with a grin.

"Hardly," said Brown.

"Brown," said the boss, "you have a propitious star. The gods have given the contribution to this galaxy of insanity. I'll be highly appropriate within the next five minutes. Tack it up so I'll stick, Brown."

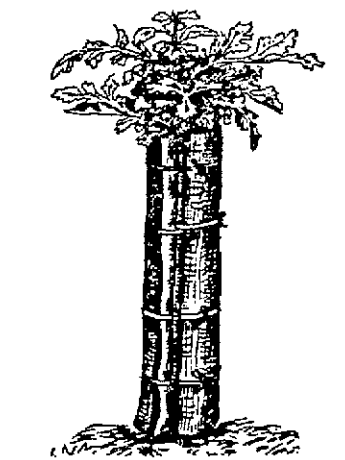

Then he made for the stairs. From that day to this, not one of us ever laid eyes on Rigby; and some of the boys still say that the governor, the frightful wrath that possessed him, killed and ate the boy, blood, bones and all, right there in Otis's office.

FARM AND GARDEN

BLANCHING CELERY.

How Paper May Be Made to Serve the Purpose.

Blanching celery with paper is usually practiced on the early plants for the reason, says Prairie Farmer, that during hot weather there is less danger of rot. The accompanying illustration shows a plan for blanching a celery plant with tile and paper.

Blanching Celery with Paper.

As shown, the stalks are collected in a tile and wrapped in heavy paper so that the light is excluded. A stake is driven near to the plant to partially support. Any method that does not injure the plant and will exclude the light will answer the purpose.

GOOD SEED CORN.

Some of the important points by Which It May Be Known.

Some of the more important observations to be made in the selection of seeds are: Yield, quality, uniformity, hardness, time of ripening, freedom from attacks of smut and rust, and, in the case of small grain, the stiffness of the straw.

The corn crop requires, perhaps, as great care in the selection as any other, and merits special attention, says the Prairie Farmer. The rapid improvement that has been made in this crop, combined with the readiness with which the different varieties cross and interbreed, it is extremely subject to variation. Constant care is necessary in order to establish the desirable qualities that are brought out in these varieties and to more thoroughly eradicate those not desirable.

Some of the points to be observed in the selection of seed corn are:

1. The size and shape of ear; ear should approach as nearly as may be a uniform diameter from end to end.

2. Size and quality of cob, a medium sized cob being much better than a large, spongy one.

3. Shape of grain; grains should carry their wedge shape uniformly to the end, so that the ear may present as nearly as possible a solid surface.

4. Covering of cob; cob should be as completely and evenly covered as possible at both ends.

5. Hardness of grain, too hard and flinty a grain not being readily masticated and digested. A hard grain, also, is more liable to be a shallow one.

6. Grains of even, uniform size and similar shape, to make possible uniformity of planting.

7. Color of grain, purity of color indicating purity of the corn.

POINTS WORTH NOTING.

For late lettuce sow in partial shade. Spinach for early spring "greens" should be sown about the 10th of this month.

It is the weevil, and not the honey bee, that punctures the grapes and does bees profit from the work of the wasp. Close by the side of the road is the best place for the garden, for then you will have pride in keeping it clean.

Keep a supply of early potatoes dug and at the house, so that your wife can get at them; don't let her dig them.

Keep the tomato plants off the ground. Nothing rots the fruit quicker or more surely than falling to the earth.

Weeds will keep right on growing, whether any else in the garden does or not. Don't let a single one go to seed, though.

How is the crop of boys and girls at your house this year? Good? Glad of it! No matter whether the corn and wheat and all things go wrong, if the harvest of young folks is all right.

Well Arranged Fields.

The shape of the fields into which the farm is divided will have much to do with the utility of the farm. In some sections of the country the fields are still divided in a very awkward manner, especially in those sections where stone walls are common. The present divisions are arbitrary and have been handed down from past years. The reasons that gave rise to the divisions at first have long since ceased to exist. When the land was cleared little by little it was necessary to fence in the cleared portions. There is, however, no need of continuing the old arrangements after the conditions have changed.

Use Rubber Hose.

One of the New York correspondents of Farm Journal writes: "I have had quite a little experience with the different ways of removing obstructions from the throats of choking cattle, and find that a short piece of rubber hose is the best thing to use. The hose admits air, and is not apt to slide by the obstruction; therefore it is better than a whip-stock or any solid instrument."

Well water is good enough for fowls and is pure water within the meaning of the term. Fowls should not be given access to water that may have in it the germs of disease. Other ways of removing obstructions into a stock, the use of a common watering dish should be discontinued. There is no doubt that such a dish is a means of contamination. The methods to be used in such a case can be studied out by any intelligent person, and need not be enumerated here. Impure water is the conveyor of many diseases.

AN ENCOURAGING SIGN.

Increase of Knowledge Among Farmers Means Better Farming.

Recently some have expressed the idea that the people living in the country are not increasing in information relative to the scientific handling of stock and the methods in vogue among scientists in the cultivation of the soil. This is a mistake, says Farmers' Review.

Agricultural science is gaining among farmers and is destined to gain more rapidly as the years go on. It was natural that at first the progress should be slow. A body of 5,000,000 persons is not to be moved in a hurry. It is an aggregation of human beings so vast that no one can conceive of its real import.

It must be remembered, too, that at first the means for affecting this great mass and moving it were very meager. When our agricultural colleges were organized they had not studied systematically the mass of agricultural information that had been accumulated, and were but poorly prepared to teach it.

It is only within the past 15 years that most of our agricultural colleges have been well enough equipped to become aggressive. Now, however, the material for teachers and instructors is abundant and great work is being done. That the farmers are being reached is demonstrated by the increasing attendance at farmers' meetings and in the agricultural colleges. Information is being spread rapidly by word of mouth. Complaint is made that the bulletins issued by the stations are not widely read by the farmers. This is because it takes something of a student to take literary matter and really absorb it, making it into something having force.

But in each locality are a few men that have this ability and they spread the information by word of mouth and by example.

There are numerous factors that are operating to bring about a better condition in the not distant future. One of these factors is the taking of more interest in agriculture by the men that have money and at the same time have a fair knowledge of farming matters. These men are buying farms and are putting into practice on them modern methods of agriculture. The farms so handled become object lessons. Other farmers follow the lead of the most enterprising, unless they lack the will and the ability to do so.

There are some of the latter class, but they are destined to disappear during the next generation or two, for the reason that others will buy their farms, which will have become unprofitable to the present owners.

It is becoming increasingly difficult to farm without thought and still make money. Farmers must make more money from their farms today than they used to, because they have more expenses. The expenses cannot be avoided, and must increase as population becomes more dense and the price of land higher. With the increase of knowledge of how to handle land, farmers will be able to balance the increasing expenses with increasing returns.

SPREADING HAY IN MOW.

Simple Device by Which the Name in Center Is Avoided.

I put my hay in barn by large hay fork, which runs on track, writes a correspondent of Rural New Yorker. The hay naturally falls in the center, and is hard to move away. I made a dozen such forks together with cross pieces on under side, and hung as per diagram. When the forkful reaches the slide, the man above notifies the man below to trip fork, and it slides to desired location. When one side has enough, slide is reversed.

A GOOD WEEDER.

For weeding onions and other garden truck I use a small tool made of hoop iron, says a correspondent of Farm and Home.

It is bent as shown in the cut, is three-quarters of an inch wide and quite stiff. The blade is slightly sharpened on a grind stone. It is the best tool for weeding I ever saw.

Begin Now.

If you haven't a good place for a garden begin now to prepare one for next year. Make a yard for your own in a good fertile spot as large as you desire for your garden and use it for a milk yard all summer. Plow it every two weeks to cover the manure and roll down. In the spring break deeply and work up well and you will have an excellent soil for the garden.

Let the pigs eat with the sow and they will be far more easy to wean.

Same one says that the voice of conscience is but an invective.

Money refunded for each package of PUNAM FADELESS DYES if unsatisfactory. Ask your druggist.

A man can make mistakes far more easily than he can make good.

Travelers of Watch's Wheels.

If kept going the wheels of a watch, it is estimated, travel 5,555, miles in a year.

War on Liquor and Tobacco.

The Kansas Anti-Liquor Society has adopted a new plan to fight the liquor traffic. It is making for a temple for the cure of the latter habit. It can be given secretly in either of two ways. One for the tobacco habit that can be given secretly. The other is for the liquor habit that you do not let the secret, but give free comes to friends. Their address is Room 21, Gray Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

Unique Election Cry.

A wooden-legged candidate for the town council of Clanton, Mont., urged his fellow artisans to elect him on the ground that a wooden leg in the council would be a pleasant variety among the wooden heads there now. "Vote for Peggy!" was his inspiring slogan.

Cheap Excursions South.

On the 1st and 3rd Tuesday of each month the Big Four Ry. will sell excursion tickets to the South, to Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida at rate of one fare plus $2.00 with return limit 30 days. Liberal stopover privileges. Write I. P. Spilling, General Northern Agent, Big Four Route, 238 Clark St., Chicago, for further information.

Service as Illuminants.

The fireflies of Jamaica emit so brilliant a light that a dozen of them, enclosed within an inverted tumbler, will enable a person to read or write at night without the least difficulty. Indeed, it is a question to which the stations are not widely read by the farmers. This is because it takes something of a student to take literary matter and really absorb it, making it into something having force.

The Same Old Bryan.

From the Warsaw Daily Herald.

"The republican papers of the country are busy these days trying to kill the Bryan boom by laborious accounts furnished by the trust press, endeavoring to show that he is 'the same old Bryan.'"

Such articles will help rather than hurt Bryan. It is because he is "the same old Bryan" that the people love and have confidence in him. It is because he is "the same old Bryan" with heart and purpose for the people and against the oppressive trusts, that the people want him for president.

It is because Roosevelt has demonstrated that the great trusts thrive by defying the law that the people love this "same old Bryan," who saw and pointed out the truth ten years ago. It is because the people have come to understand that his life, if any, relief may be expected from the republican party because it is bound hand and foot by campaign contributions from the trusts, and handicapped by men elected by the trusts to serve the trusts, that they want this "same old Bryan," who is not afraid to denounce the betrayals of the people, whether they are in the republican party or the democratic party.

Every time a trust hireling press yawns "the same old Bryan" the people say "amen" and bless him for being "the same old Bryan" and pray God to speed the day when he will be president.

October Weather.

Early sleet and snow in the extreme north and northwest are predicted for the opening of October by Rev. Ir. R. Hicks. The regular storm period will be from the second to the seventh day of the month. During this time all varieties of storms will prevail. Severe and dangerous tropical storms will take place in the southern parts of the country. The weather will be cool and will spread to most parts of the country, with frost in the northern parts.

A reactionary storm period is charted for the tenth to the twelfth. During this time there will be a rising temperature and return of the autumn rains and gales. The autumn storms are expected to cause dangerous disturbances along the northern lakes. From the eleventh to the fifteenth the weather will be colder.

A regular storm period will occur from the sixteenth to the twentieth of the month. It is expected that this will be one of the most severe and dangerous storm periods of the month, if not the whole autumn. Tropical storms, with high temperature and lightning and thunder will be natural on or about the sixteenth of the month. These conditions will move in an easterly direction and will cause violent gales followed by a sudden rising of the barometer and rain in the northern parts. On the twenty-third and twenty-fifth the weather will become warmer and there will be light autumnal rains. Hard storms will be prevalent on the great lakes.

During the last five days of the month there will be a regular storm period. In the western parts of the country the weather will be warm, but there will be rain and snow in different parts of the whole country. A cold wave will strike the country before the thirty-first with decided dashes of autumnal snow and gales.

A JOKE.

Wausau Pilot, Oct. 1.—The Republican party as today made up in Wisconsin, is a joke. It is a practical joke of the most exasperating kind. It is, too, a serious joke just the same. It was Mat Quay we think, who said that the secret of political party success, was in a union of conflicting elements. Look at the quarrelsome and quarrelsome. See the Half-breed Free Press and the St. Lawrence Sentinel! "Cheek by Jowl," Mutualized. The new octopus, the new power in Wisconsin politics. What principle actuates these men? None! What are they here for? The offices! The people of this state will not stand by and ratify this union of political exploiters, nor will they endorse any platform that it will formulate. The electorate looks to the Democracy of the state for a complete cleaning up of the departments at Madison and the substitution of good for bad management of the state's affairs. Shan Reform lying down with Political Depravity. The Free Press and the Sentinel—the lamb lying down with the lion; the lion inside the lion. The Sentinel, the admitted champion of the Dingleyism and its progeny, the arm in arm with the self-styled trumpet of "reform." The Free Press, Charley Foster in calicoes with Ike Stephenson, Ohio go gold, whom will the people take notice of this great film-fam act, this great confidence game that is being played upon them?

The new power in politics. The triumvirate—Spooner, Pfister and Stephenson. The quartette in the great political shell game—Conner, Spooner, Pfister and Stephenson. The big four. The millionaire four-ringed circus under one tent. Four shows in one.

"O'wad some power the giftie gie us, To see ourselves as others see us."

Marinette Eagle Star.—The city sealer of Chicago has set a good example to the country by bringing suits against four of the big packing houses of Chicago, for the selling of short weight lard. Short weights are very common, not only in Chicago, but in probably every city.

Quart berry boxes do not, as a rule, contain three-fourths of a quart, the bottom being pushed upwards in proportion to the scarcity or plentifulness of the fruit. The man who weighs his hand with the meat he sells is also too common, taking advantage of the customer who relies on his honesty. Bread is another notable instance of short weight, and a very serious one.

Comparatively few loaves of bread weigh a pound. And yet the law lays a penalty on every loaf sold that is short of the legal weight. It is these kinds of dishonest dealings that make men skeptical and bitter toward mankind. The loaf of bread that is light in weight should be confiscated and the customer protected. The notion of the Chicago city sealer may well be followed elsewhere.

An Awful Cough Cured.

"Two years ago our little girl had a touch of pneumonia, which left her with an awful cough. She had spells of coughing, just like one with the whooping cough and some thought she would not get well at all. We got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which acted like a charm. She stopped coughing and got stout and fat," writes Mrs. Ora Bassard, Brubaker, Ill. This remedy is for sale by Daily Drug & Jewelry Co.

Largest Attendance in History of University.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 27.—The preliminary registration at the University of Wisconsin is the largest in the history of the university. There is an increase thus far of 103 students over the number enrolled at the same time last year. All departments show substantial gains. An unusually large number of students have entered the junior and senior classes of the colleges of letters and science and engineering with advanced standing from other universities. The indications now point to a total enrollment for the year of over 3,700 students. The preliminary registration in the college of engineering is 768, an increase of 41 over the corresponding time last year. The number of students in the college of letters and science thus far is 1,372, an increase of 51. The colleges of agriculture and pharmacy also show substantial gains. The students are still registering daily, and indications are that the increase in attendance will continue to grow.

Back Stamping is to Stop.

Back stamping of letters which is done to designate the hour of receipt at the postoffice may be eliminated in a reform which is being tried at several of the big postoffices of the country and if the experiment is found to be a success it will greatly expedite the delivery in all cities. Officials are of the opinion that back stamping is of no particular benefit serving to end that cannot be obtained in other ways, and in cities where there is a congestion of mail the delivered from twenty minutes to two hours sooner. It is said that the public is not interested in the mail being back stamped.

Want Better Facilities.

The Marshfield Times says there should be better mail facilities between Marshfield and Grand Rapids, and the proposed remedy is to have the Central carry mail between the two cities. They think that if there was a closer push, brought down on the morning train and one taken back at night, it would solve the problem. It does seem that the mail facilities are very meager between Grand Rapids and Marshfield considering the amount of business that is transacted between the two cities, and there is no question but what if the proper steps were taken something could be done to better matters.

Do Not Like New Game.

There is some evidence that "reform" football will go to smash after the 1906 season, and that there will be a compromise between old-time football and "reform."

A special from Chicago says that some of the supposed panaceas for athletic crimes have already proved ineffective and more dangerous than the ailments for which they were prescribed, according to the Midway jury.

Several members of the maroon faculty, who were particularly "loved" after pushing the pure sport crusade have reported of their early lunch and are now wishing things had not gone so far. The early practice rule, which provides that no team shall begin official practice before the university to which it belongs opens its fall term; the rules abolishing the training table and training quarters; the provision that freshmen may not be admitted to the colleges with entrance conditions, and the so-called "anti-athletic" rules, which forbid students to compete in athletics who have entrance "contests" more than one year old and which force athletes to take more studies than formerly, and around New Hampshire's left end, behind good interference, and ran sixty yards for a touchdown. Minor putting out the opposing fullback in a spectacular way.

The first game of any importance played in the east under the new football rules was that of Saturday between the University of Maine and New Hampshire State college. Maine won 7 to 0. Owing to the rain-soaked field the game was hardly a fair test of the new regulations, but, even allowing for the poor conditions, the contest was crude and very unsatisfactory.

Both teams played the new game pure and simple, with straight and crooked back at the line, varied by end and quarterback runs. The forward pass was tried only once, New Hampshire losing the ball on the attempt.

Maine made a big gain once by the new on-side kick, Burleigh getting down under a 25-yard punt. No one was injured and no time was taken out in either period. Maine was paralyzed once for off-side play.

In the second half Higgins went

The "reforms" now declared impracticable.

"The objection to the new rules is that a number of these rules will certainly be violated by some of the colleges without detection, inasmuch as they are of such a vague nature that they will be difficult to define. The early practice rule is a good example. The maroon football candidates are now practicing daily on Marshfield field, 'unofficially,' although Coach Stegg is not on hand to do the coaching.

A good parallel to the new rules in the opinion of certain maroon officials is the summer baseball rule. This rule is broken perhaps more than any other, and yet it is retained in a place of honor on the university statute books. Several conference authorities have declared that the rule is a farce, but, notwithstanding this, no action has been taken on it."

AMONG CRANBERRY MEN.

EDITED BY W. H. FITCH.

Gathering Long Island Cranberries
Riverhead, L. I., Sept. 1, 1906.
The harvesting of cranberries has begun and there is every indication that there will be a large yield.

This year conditions of weather have been and remain conducive to another good yield, but such is the case being that a moderate estimate of the anticipated gathering is about 100,000 bushels, or from $75,000 to $100,000, out of which the laboring class will realize well on toward $15,000.

Last year was particularly profitable, because of the partial failure of the cranberry crop in Massachusetts, and the scarcity of apples, and the price of the berries was nearly doubled, reaching six per barrel at times.

The cranberry growing farmers of Long Island, whose lands border the Atlantic Ocean and the marshes of the Sound, were wise enough when speculators sought options on the water supply of their marshes to say no and retain the water for the needs of their cranberries.

For two years they have congratulated themselves upon their decision, because by retaining the water supply they have been enabled to harvest profitable crops of berries each year.

Fruit Trade Journal.
The American Cranberry Growers' Association.
The late meeting of the American Cranberry Growers' Association was noted for being one of its largest held in its history.

Secretary, Richard A. Smith, was particularly significant and confident in his opinion of the future of the industry. He said that the industry is believed will work for general good.

As to publicity while not unanimous, the opinions of growers favored the publication of information on the ground that secrecy had an effect of alluring innocent or ignorant investment. While admitting the fact that the rosier side of the business is apt to be accepted by showing the contingencies incident to the culture of cranberries, when the facts become generally known that it costs from $200 to $300 per acre, and a number of years of waiting in considerable action will be checked and curtailed.

A policy of exclusiveness tends to put before the public the successes and not the failures. The path of the cranberry grower is imagined to be one of ease, and devoid of trouble. Unappreciated are such conditions as frost, fire, flood, fungus, fire worms, army worms, crickets, grasshoppers, and so on, and innumerable, puzzling the grower's brain as the secretary puts it with varied and persistent attacks causing sleepless nights with an empty purse for a pillow.

The fact that cranberries grow wild on comparatively worthless land gives the impression that growers possess a highly valuable holding, but it is not taken into consideration that much expenditure and continued outlay is necessary for removal of brush, briars, noxious weeds and grasses. It is not realized that constant attention and frequent repairs must be given to flood gates and dams, and more firing given to the trouble it is suggested it will be better for all concerned.

When those who have been spending a lifetime knowing little about the business to compare notes is deemed wise, and as the experience of others is needed, those should be a giving as well as getting of it.

Complimenting cranberry growers as a class on their intelligence, it should be remembered, no less in an age of progress, and rebuked of their inebriation to the contribution of inventions of Morse and Edison and of reported discovery of Columbus, which make it possible for other denizens than Indians.

It is therefore urged to keep up with the progress and appreciate the dignity of the agricultural class becoming more and more prominent. That the wealth created is dug from the soil and not stolen, and in extent during the last two years surpassed the output of mines of gold silver and copper since discovery of Columbus.

Regarding crop conditions the plan adopted of using percentage based on a normal crop, a system used by the United States Department of Agriculture, and for purposes of comparison the following is submitted: New England 600,000 bushels, New Jersey and Long Island 400,000 bushels, the west 100,000 bushels total 1,100,000 based on the information at time of meeting the crop of New England would be 488,000 bushels, New Jersey and Long Island 315,000 bushels, and the west 135,000 bushels, or 126,000 in excess of last years short crop.

Besides the above the secretary spoke instructively regarding crop conditions, that up to the first week in August there was general indications of a fair crop the country over. There were no winter-killing but May frosts did more or less damage on uncovered bogs in all sections. He took up the matter of late flooding which is better to be a lighter materialization of fruit buds, and was disappointing in destroying the eggs of the fruit worm as it was expected according to experience and scientific

Our Candidate For Sheriff.

We present herewith to the readers of the Tribune a picture of Julius Welch of Marshallfield, the man whom the democrats nominated for sheriff at the September primaries. He is not only a good looking fellow but he is a good fellow, mentally, morally and physically. Mr. Welch is engaged in the real estate business at Marshallfield where he has lived for a large number of years and is well known. He ran for the office of sheriff two years ago, and although his friends stood by him only he went down in defeat with the rest of the democratic candidates. Mr. Welch has no hard feelings on that account, however, and if there are any who would like to correct their error by giving him their support this year, he will not find any fault with them. Mr. Welch is not a politician, but not made a practice of looking for office, and on such occasions he has been nominated by his friends, who feel that they can fill the office as good as any man in the county. When you cast a ballot for Mr. Welch you will be doing the right thing and the indications now are that he will be elected to the office this fall.

Cranberry Marsh for Sale.

The Briere Pommeville Cranberry Marsh will be sold this fall because of the condition of Mr. Briere's health. There are 28 acres in all, 40 acres in vines. Of these 20 acres are natives, and the balance 20 are planted, MacFarlin and Howes. Water supply and drainage is excellent. There is a good opportunity to increase the amount of vines to 100 acres or more. For particulars inquire of J. A. Gaynor, Grand Rapids, Wis.

The new meat inspection labels are unique. They consist of a thin piece of gelatin or like substance about one and one quarter inches square. On the label is printed in blue letters something like this: U. S. Inspected and Passed 207. The inspector simply slaps the little tag on the piece of meat and the moisture makes it stick. In a short time the gelatin dissolves and the blue letters remain on the meat. It can't be removed except by cutting it off and is absolutely harmless.

Last Tuesday a message was received here that Lewis Smith, commonly known as Toot, was killed at Rhineland by being run over by the cars. His brother, Ernie, went up that evening and returned next day with the remains which were interred at Pittsville, his old home, on Thursday.

Lewis Reinhold, carsmith of Poulawak, came down Wednesday to do some work returning next day. Lewis thinks it's rather lousesome here now since the division.

August Miller has been transferred to Babcock. He has his old position again taking care of the diner while it remains here over night. This gives him a chance to be at home.

Mrs. W. J. Sullivan stopped off here for a few days visit on her way home from the Dakotas. She returned home Saturday evening.

Mrs. Greiber and Miss McKoon were shopping in the Rapids on Saturday.

Troubles Commence.

Wauwat is already having trouble over its street railway, work upon which has been commenced. The Record of that city says: "There has been a controversy between the members of the council and the company as to the rails to be used in the construction of the lines to be put in this fall. The franchise says that the company shall use 'the safest, best and most improved rails.' The company has secured four-inch T-rails and scattered them along the right of way. The claim is made that the rails are second hand and that they are too low to allow to be placed in a satisfactory manner. It is also claimed that while the T-rail is not particularly objectionable they should be not less than six inches high and that seven inches would be preferable. The matter is to be taken up by the common council.

Notice of General Election.

STATE OF WISCONSIN
DEPARTMENT OF STATE
Notice is hereby given that at a general election to be held in the several towns, wards, villages and election districts of the state of Wisconsin, on the first Tuesday succeeding the first Monday, 1906, The following officers are to be elected:

Circuit Court in Session.

Circuit court convened in this city on Monday afternoon, Judge Charles M. Webb presiding.

There were three criminal cases on the calendar, but none of these will be tried at this term of the court. One of the cases that is being tried is that of Anna L. Cady against the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York. This company refuses to pay life insurance on the person of Mr. Cady, he having held an accident policy in the company for the sum of $5,000.

One of the cases that was up on Tuesday was that of John Miller against the Centralia Pulp and Paper Power Co. This is an action for personal damages which the plaintiff alleged to have sustained while at work in defendant's mill. The case is still on trial.

There is an unusual array of legal talent in attendance at the term this year, but the calendar promises to be disposed of at an early date.

Monument Unveiled.

Football Saturday

On Saturday afternoon at the fair grounds, the Grand Rapids high school eleven will play the Stevens Point Normal team. These are the two teams that played a score of 10 to 0 at Stevens Point last Saturday. It is expected that it will be a hotly contested game. Be on hand at 2 o'clock p. m.

PLAYED A TIE GAME.

Local Football Team Holds Down the Normal Eleven at Stevens Point.

The high school football team from this city played the Normal team at Stevens Point on Saturday afternoon and the score was 0 to 0. The local team naturally feels some what elated over being able to hold down a team that was older and heavier than themselves. Those who saw the game said that the local team outplayed the Stevens Pointers somewhat. The following is from the Stevens Point Journal concerning the game.

The first football game of the season between the Normal and Grand Rapids High school teams, was called shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon. Grand Rapids had the ball and east goal. Arpin kicked about twenty five yards. The Normal team started down the field rapidly until Grand Rapids took a brace and three times compelled the Normal to punt. This kept the ball in the hands of the Grand Rapids team to be the quick of the two teams and made its gains by straight football, once being compelled to punt. The score at the end of the first half stood 0 to 0.

In the second half neither side scored. The game was very poorly attended, though the spectators were much outdone after each play.

The line up follows:

For the best sample of potatoes brought to his place, John Holmstedt will give an 8th of beer.

Sprung and Pevinski will also give an 8th of beer for the best sample of potatoes brought to their place on fair day.

Johnson & Hill offer 35 pounds of sugar to the lady bringing the largest number of eggs to their store on fair day.

Gross & Lyons offer the choice of their trimmed hats to the lady winning the egg race, distance 30 yards.

Timms & Briere offer a combination suit of underwear to the lady bringing the largest and heaviest head of cabbage to their store.

The Central Hardware Co. will give a $1.50 knit outer to the person selling the best fresh milk cow on the grounds.

Gross & Lyons will give a 50 pound sack of the best patent flour to the former winning the 50 yard dash.

Judges—Will Gross and Garry Mason.

John Bell reports that there is a demand for several fresh milk cows in the city, also for a number of horses.

Bryan to Speak in Wisconsin This Fall

William Jennings Bryan will participate in the Wisconsin campaign for the election of John A. Aylward for governor.

Definite announcement to this effect was received today by Chairman Herbert H. Hanson of the Democratic state central committee, from Mr. Bryan, who said he would come to Wisconsin before the campaign was over.

Just when Mr. Bryan will be here is not announced in the correspondence so far received but it is not the expectation of Mr. Hanson that the Nebraska leader will be here much before the end of this month.

How long Mr. Bryan will be in Wisconsin is also not yet known, but he will be here for more than one engagement and it is possible that he will be in the state as long as three days.

Just as soon as it is definitely known how long Mr. Bryan will be here arrangement will be made for his schedule in the state, and if his stay is for three days the program will be so arranged as to give him opportunity to make speeches in the largest cities of the state.

Got Ten Days.

Bert Austin is serving a ten day sentence in the county jail as the result of leaving out on the second morning church one day and disturbing a religious meeting that was in progress. Bert seems to be unable to behave himself and as a consequence has served several short terms in jail for fool offenses that he has committed.

Registration Day.

Tuesday, Oct. 9 and Oct. 30 will be registration days at the different voting precincts and persons who are figuring on voting at the coming election are notified that they should get their names in.

Teachers Entertain.

The teachers of the high school entertained the other teachers of the city and their friends on Friday night at the Lincoln school, and there was a very pleasant time. There were readings and music, and the high school orchestra was in attendance, and after the other exercises, those present spent a short time in dancing.

City Council Meeting.

The common council met on Tuesday evening in regular session. Mayor Wheeler presiding. Most of the business disposed of was regular routine work such as hearing reports of street and waterworks committees and allowing bills etc.

E. W. Little presented his resignation as supervisor from the eighth ward and same was accepted. B. H. Gorman was elected to fill the vacancy.

Two petitions were presented concerning the city hall which it is proposed to erect on the east side. One of these petitions asked that the construction of the city hall at its present location be discontinued and the other that the work be carried forward without delay. As the case is now pending in circuit court the petitions probably do not count very much either way as each had a large number of signers.

A communication from the school board asked that the sum of $3000 be raised for school purposes the coming year. The amount was placed at $27,000 by the council.

The amount of taxes that will have to be raised to cover the same is $24,000, according to the estimate of the mayor.

Grand Rapids Baseball Team Scores Two Shutouts Over Berlin Last Week.

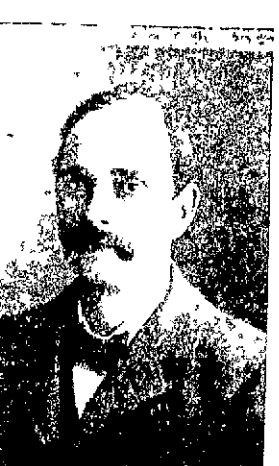

The Grand Rapids Baseball team wound up their season's work last week in a glorious manner, shutting out Berlin in two straight games the contest on Thursday being 5 to 0 and on Friday a 10 to 0.

Gornley pitched for the home team on Thursday and those that saw the game said that he put up a good game all the way thru. The lineup of the game on Thursday consisted of: Powell, Dalin, Wacker, Springer, Kreuz, McDonnell, Martenson, Metzel and Gornley.

On Friday Barlow pitched for the home team and he also put up a star game. The lineup on Friday was: Powell, Dalin, Wacker, Kreuz, Martenson, Springer, Metzel and Barlow.

For Clerk of Circuit Court.

We present herewith a picture of L. E. Colvin of Pittsville, who is the democratic nominee for clerk of the circuit court. We want every democrat in Wood County to vote for Mr. Colvin and enough Republicans to show that there is no ill feeling on either side. There is no doubt but what Mr. Colvin is a man who is well fitted to fill the place for which he has been selected by his party, and when a vote is cast for him the voter may feel sure that he has done his share toward electing a competent man.

Resolution of Respect

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in his wisdom to remove from our midst to the higher life our beloved and esteemed sister, Mary Muroy and whereas, while we bow in humble submission to the will of the Supreme Ruler of this universe, we realize that in the loss of our sister, our order has been bereft of a beloved sister, and the community of a useful upright member, Therefore be it Resolved that our flag and charter be draped in mourning for thirty days and that we express our deep sorrow to the afflicted family in this their time of mourning, and be it further resolved that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our corps records, and that they be published in the city newspapers and a copy thereof be presented to the family.

A Small Blaze.

A fire occurred in the home of Mrs. Love on Sunday, which destroyed some clothes belonging to Mr. Love. Mr. and Mrs. Love were at church when the fire was discovered, and were at a loss to account for its origin. Mr. Love had been up stairs just before leaving the house and thought that possibly he might have dropped some matches in the pocket, thus starting the fire.

Opens with Forty Pupils.

The Northwest Collegiate Institute opened at Sherry on Sept. 12 and at present has an enrollment of 10 students, both young men and women recruited from over a wide territory. There are students there from New York, New Jersey and other distant states, who have heard of the ideals and aims of the new school. The faculty consists of Ralph Melvin Smith, B. A., president of Foyette academy from 1903 to 1906, president and eight other members, including a practicing physician, the farm overseer and a business manager. The business manager is Roy William J. Agnew. It is one of the aims of this school to furnish young people with the opportunity to earn their way through college. It is located on a large tract of agricultural land situated at some little distance from the Sherry railroad station.

Teachers Entertain.

The teachers of the high school entertained the other teachers of the city and their friends on Friday night at the Lincoln school, and there was a very pleasant time. There were readings and music, and the high school orchestra was in attendance, and after the other exercises, those present spent a short time in dancing.

TRAINING SCHOOL.

Committee Meets at Courthouse Monday to Hear Offers From Different Places.

At the last meeting of the county board a committee was appointed for the purpose of finding a site for the Wood County Teachers Training School and also to find what the different places in the county had to offer for the school in the way of a site and other advantages. The committee consisted of Messrs. Gorman, Keith and Iverson and these gentlemen held a meeting at the courthouse on Monday afternoon on which occasion there were a number of kind men present from this city as well as Marshfield to talk on the matter.

Among those present were Otto I. C. of Marshfield, J. M. Dunning and Geo. M. Hill and L. M. Nash of this city. The delegation from this city made the offer of six or eight acres of land as a site for the school, the same as had been done before. The Marshfield delegation apparently and nothing to offer, as they made no offer and seemed to be rather anxious to have the meeting adjourned.

Otto I. C. addressed the meeting, at some length, and after explaining that he had been the first one to suggest the establishment of a training school in the county showing that he was in sympathy with the movement, went on to tell what he considered some of the advantages of the school. One of these was the fact that a scholar who had completed the eighth grade in a common school could enter the training school and after spending one year there could receive a certificate that would entitle him to teach for 3 years, and a scholar who had gone to a city school and graduated from the high school course, and consequently had three years more of learning might not be able to obtain a third grade certificate as had been the case in the past. He thought that this was wrong, and that the training school graduates should be compelled to take the same examination as the high school graduates, for in his opinion the high school graduate had a better education than the one who was permitted to teach.

After hearing the talk on the subject of pupils being graduated from the training school the committee of the school was examined and it was found that the average of the pupils who have been given a diploma at that institution is nine and one half years, which is somewhat older than the average age of high school graduates.

The Marshfield people present seemed to be inclined to question the ability of the city of Grand Rapids to give a clear title to the land on which they offer to the school, but those present from this city were of the opinion that there would be no trouble from this source.

The committee then adjourned until October 2nd.

Will Start the Campaign.

The republican nominee held a meeting in this city on Tuesday and decided that they would at once start an active campaign to be continued until the election day. They expect to hold meetings in all the principal burghs of the county.

THE BEST THAT MONEY CAN BUY.
Johnson & Hill Co.
GRAND RAPIDS, - - WISCONSIN.

Men Who Gamble
In the clothes they buy.

Will lose at every turn, unless they can tell fabric, or are perfectly familiar with the few good clothes makers in America.

You don't get all-wool clothing many places because the high price of wool just at present is a great temptation to tailors and clothing dealers to use material with a little cotton in them. To be frank—"mercerized" cotton; and these same people are selling suits labeled "all-wool." We not only label our suits all-wool but we go so far as to guarantee them all-wool.

A mercerized cotton suit, one that the man tells you is good as you can get, is the suit you'll notice now of days which attains every sad look after a very short time of wear. This is the other words will tell you why we present in calling attention to HART SCHAFNER & MARX suits and SOLOMAN BROS. & LAMPERT'S overcoats they are all-wool and all right.

SUITS

Here is a suit in unshrinkable worsted, gray, serge lined well padded shoulders, a mercerized silk, a double breasted skirt. A hammer for the price and you will feel it in the fire. $11.00

Men's fancy mixed worsted suits, good quality, serge lining square pockets, they look double breasted in all wool suit that is going to move quick. $12.50

Here is a suit that will give you a dressy look in black unshrinkable worsted it is serge lined. A very quality, broad padded shoulders, unbreakable front. Our celebrated $14.41 single or double breasted suit in 30's, 32's, 34's, 36's, 38's, 40's, 42's, 44's, 46's, 48's, 50's, 52's, 54's, 56's, 58's, 60's, 62's, 64's, 66's, 68's, 70's, 72's, 74's, 76's, HOW STENSLAND WAS CAPTURED

Story of the Pursuit and Apprehension of the President of the Wrecked Milwaukee Avenue State Bank of Chicago.

Run to Earth at Tangier, Morocco, the Man Chiefly Responsible for the Ruin of Thousands of Poor Depositors in His Institution Comes Back to the United States to End His Life in the Penitentiary—Days and Nights of Misery Since His Flight from Chicago.

Chicago.—The story of the pursuit and capture of Paul O. Stensland, president of the wrecked Milwaukee Avenue State bank, is one of the most dramatic in the history of the city. It is a story of a man who, after a long and eventful life, has returned to his native land to face the consequences of his actions.

It was the old story of a woman who had been treated with the utmost kindness and consideration by the authorities. She had been treated with the utmost kindness and consideration by the authorities. She had been treated with the utmost kindness and consideration by the authorities.

The Same Old Bryan.
From the Wausau Daily Herald.
The republican papers of the country are busy these days trying to kill the Bryan boom by laborious search for the truth, but the truth is, calculated to show that he is "the same old Bryan."

Such articles will help rather than hurt Bryan. It is because he is "the same old Bryan" that the people love and have confidence in him. It is because he is "the same old Bryan" with heart and purpose for the people and against the oppressors, that the people want him for president.

Every time a trust-busting press yawns the same old Bryan, the people say "amen" and bless him for being "the same old Bryan," who said and pointed out the truth ten years ago. It is because the people have come to understand that but little, if any, relief may be expected from the republican party because it is bound hand and foot by campaign contributions from the trusts, and handicapped by men elected by the trusts to serve the trusts, that they want this "same old Bryan," who is not afraid to denounce the betrayals of the people, whether they are in the republican party or the democratic party.

Do Not Like New Game.

There is some evidence that "reform" football will go to smash after the 1906 season, and that there will be a compromise between old-time football and "reform."

The first game of any importance played in the east under the new football rules was that of Saturday between the University of Maine and New Hampshire State college.

Several members of the mainon faculty, who were particularly keen after pushing the pure sport crusade have reported of their early hunch and are now wishing things had gone so far. The early practice rule, which provides that no team shall begin official practice before the university to which it belongs opens its fall term; the rules abolishing the training table and training quarters; the provision that freshmen may not be admitted to the colleges with entrance conditions, and the so-called "anti-athletic" rules, which forbid students to compete in athletics who have entrance "cents" more than one year old and which force athletes to take more studies than formerly, and around New Hampshire's left end, behind good interference, and ran ninety yards for a touchdown. Minor putting out the opposing fallback in a spectacular way.

A special from Chicago says that "some of the supposed panaceas for athletic crimes have already proved ineffective and more dangerous than the ailments for which they were prescribed, according to the Midway story."

Both teams played the new game pure and simple, with straight and crosscut back at the line, varied by end and quarterback runs. The forward pass was tried only once. New Hampshire losing the ball on the attempt.

Maine made a big gain once by the now on-side kick, Enright getting down under a 25-yard punt. No one was injured and no time was taken out in either period. Maine was penalized once for off-side play.

In the second half Higgins went to the "reformer" now declared impracticable.

"The objection at the Midway is that a number of these rules will certainly be violated by some of the colleges without detection, inasmuch as they are of such a vague nature that they will be difficult to define. The early practice rule is a good example. The mainon football candidates are now practicing daily on Marshall field, "unofficially," although Coach Stagg is not on hand to do the coaching.

"A good parallel to the new rules in the opinion of certain mainon officials is the summer baseball rule. This rule is broken perhaps more than any other, and yet it is retained in a place of honor on the university statute books. Several conference authorities have declared that the rule is a farce, but, notwithstanding this, no action has been taken on it."

...and, the 'reforms' now declared impracticable and unworkable.

The objection at the Midway is that a number of these rules will certainly be violated by some of the 'big game' hunters, and that the nature of the game is such that the rules will be difficult to enforce.

The maroon football players are now practicing daily on Marshall field, 'unofficially', although 'Green Stage' is not on hand to look on.

A good parallel to the new rules is the opinion of certain maroon officials is the summer baseball rule. This rule is broken perhaps more than any other, and yet it is retained in a place of honor on the university statute books. Several conference authorities have declared that the rule is a farce, but, notwithstanding this, no action has been taken on it.

And glad you are hopeful, sweet glad that for you the future is rich in promise. But it is in youth the rainbow takes its glitter from gold at the farther tip. At my age, you will have learned to value glory most because it shines
ach tears.

At this point they were interrupted by a knock. "I beg your pardon," said a maid, "but I am sent as envoy-in-charge to call you in to breakfast. I can recommend our journeying party. And your servant here has a letter for you. It is from — wherever that may be. It is — sounds like something very relatable."

Lighting and talking brightly, they went to breakfast.

A meal was served in a small,
ruffled room, cosy with a glow of fire. Here America provided all the strength of her ungainly and loyal heart. She alone, of the servants, insisted upon accompaning the party. "Am I going?" and she repeated Lavender's words. "Well, honey, I just wish I was as plump as you. I mean as I am 'cavortin' round in that old No. 1's ark!"

The owners of the rude boat to which America thus alluded were, for the most part, joy youths from the eastern cities, who, for varied reasons, had chosen to follow the fortunes of Aaron Burr.

Those among them to whom he was personally known, had been carried away by his magnetic presence; others
by party preferences, but more, like Charles Winslow, were here in obedience to a longing for change, with moderate hopes of fame and fortune.
If there were schemes afoot against their country—if there were peril to its flag in the proposed expedition—
they were ignorant of it. Burr's public successes had awakened in them an admiration which no later disgrace could subdue. Hence their zeal in a cause which, originally undertaken from motives of personal gain, was, by hostile opposition, converted into a crusade for the vindication of their leader. All were enraptured at what they considered unwarranted interference on the part of the authorities, and this indignation was roused under conditions which barred sober thought; at a time when party feeling ran high; when, if as seldom, men held impartial opinions, they were confined to private individuals.
The truth concerning those in official power was largely obscured by the mist
of calumny or the glamour of worship.

At dusk of the first day on the river,
Lavender was standing on the roof which served as a promenade deck. A light snow began to fall. She watched the white flakes drift reluctantly into too black water that lapped and foamed to meet them. Dark treacherous waves reared their jagged heads. Corbulars, like, the foam from the keel circling in a white lather about their gant mouths.

The hills rose bare and rugged on either side, without sign of life; she might have been a lonely passenger on the river Styx, with the man at the pole a silent Charon.

Shivering, she turned to go and it was with a start of pleasure that she saw Winslow's figure loom out of the fog. She was glad of this interruption to her unquiet brooding. Morbid fancies came to her as unwelcome guests, and she only smiled at Winslow, and turned to look again at the foam-flecked path they had come.

"You are staring at the river regretfully, as though it were a gray ribbon unwinding between you and everything good," he said.

She shook her head. "On the contrary, it is bearing me along with what I love most, to everything that is most dear."

"Then you do not dread the change?"

"I do not," she replied.

"Are you so dicker toward old loves,
old things, old places?"

She turned to him with a rueful smile. "You give me credit for deeper feelings than I possess. I am both so shallow and so optimistic that I always think the new is to be as good as the old. For that reason I am, perhaps, easily reconciled to change. Besides I will have both—the old and the new."

"But the old will be only a memory
— a legacy."

"Well," she admitted, "are not memories sweet? I do not not enjoy legacies."

"But they presuppose loss."

She frowned and shook her head in playful remonstrance. "You are making me gloomy; let us go below."

A little later, they joined the others in the cabin.

Here, about the fire was gathered the group of travelers, and Winslow and Lavender paused in the doorway to watch them.

The light and shadow played strange pranks with all. It brought into grotesque relief a suit of nankeen here, a buff waistcoat there—or singled out for an especial gleam a saucy cap or scarlet kerchief. In spite of past difficulties and a future that threatened more,
their spirits were strong, their hearts light, and undisturbed. At first there had been excited talk and speculation, but gradually silence fell, and somebody started a song.

Mrs. Creighton slipped to the spinet and softly played the air, while the rest joined in the refrain:

J. T. SCOTT

"You need not leave them," Winslow urged. "I will explain your situation to my comrades, but for their consent I can vouch. We will find room for everybody—such as it is."

Mrs. Blennerhassett's sensible, earnest face relaxed in a grateful smile.
She took her hand in silence.

"Then let us consider it settled," he said, cheerfully, "and prepare to start at dawn to-morrow. To champion ladies in distress will give new zest to our enterprise."

"I see, Mr. Wayfarer, even traitors, though you are called, you are to be knights-errant, too."

A thick mist hung over the island
when, at sunrise next day, the boat with its little band of voyagers set out on the journey down the Ohio.

There were none to molest them, the soldiers yet asleep after the drunken carouse of the night previous. The island in its dressing gown of fog through which the rising sun blinked suddenly,
was but a dark blur between the lighter gray of river and sky. They seemed a ghostly crew sailing out from the land of shadows, as silently they moved with the noiseless stream. A bleak wind blew off shore, bringing frosty promises of earliest winter.

Two women, pale and somber-eyed,
leaned against the railing aft, watching the island recede and fade until it seemed a mirage caught in the long shafts of growing, purple light. With every leap of the narrow craft they were being borne away to a new life.

But in Mrs. Blennerhassett's mind regret had little place. A ruined home—a present helplessness, were light evils to an ambition so strong, a courage so dauntless and a hope that would not see defeat. She gazed with wide, fearless eyes at the blot in the fog, which she had once called home. Then resolutely turned her gaze westward.

"Come, look ahead, dear," she said to Mrs. Creighton. "Let us go into the cabin and make merry with the rest.
Think only of the future; we are beginning again."

Mrs. Creighton tried to smile in answer. "I will join you in a moment,"
she said.

But, left alone, the smile died from her lips, the color from her eyes. For to this woman—no longer young, to whom worldly ambition seemed a will-o'-the-wisp, "beginning again" was a task not worth while. Before her mental vision swept a swift phantasma goria in which past, present and future were strangely mingled.

She saw the home they had lately left,
that spot of all to her most sacred, the home of others. On the hearth burned a stranger's fire; the old paths were trodden by other feet; her flowers were spoiled for other hands.

And then fancy tried to picture the home awaiting her—that new home in the far west which her husband and son had gone to prepare, that beyond the great river they might begin life again.
But between these two—the dear home
she had left and the one in store, there were wild forests, yet wilder men, and that great mysterious barrier, the Mississippi.

But it was not in her nature to rebel
at the inevitable.

Too wise in experience for high expectations, and too philosophic for despair,
she had also a fine optimism, a faith in the future. And it was easier to believe now, that the old home was no longer there. The claim to the grant of land in the old Dominion was declared invalid, her title contested. Gradually their savings had been swept away, until, after the havoc of legal battles and property remained. Ruined, broken in spirit, Mr. Creighton had gone to the new country—to that far western territory—that land where, so swift had been the change of masters, there yet waved the flags of Spain, of France and of the new republic. There, if fortune awaited, he could spend a few years, at last to go back, his head high, a prosperous dweller in the old haunts. If not—then let the wilderness swallow up his failure.

His wife, and daughter, too, had left Virginia, but had intended remaining on Blennerhassett island until spring.
But now their friends were involved in a deep undertaking, one, indeed, which was, in its nature, proving perilous, perhaps disastrous.

This proceeding, denied them, they must, nevertheless, continue the journey; but how, and under what conditions? They had little money and no influence. So far they were safe with Mrs. Blennerhassett and her party, but soon their paths diverged, and then—

Lavender's voice recalled her.

"Mother, let us go in; you are cold."

The girl had been talking to the man at the pole, and turned to see her mother, the noise of whose head, the droop of whose shoulders, indicated sorrowful reflection.

Lavender, in her brilliant cloak, with a flush on her fair cheek, seemed to concentrate within her own glad self, all the radiance and glow of the morning. As the elder lingered, with wistful gaze upon the swirl of water, she continued, pleadingly:

"Don't be drowsy, dearest—surely,
you are hopeful of our success and happiness in the new life?"

"It is never best to be too sanguine, daughter; hope is the mother of disappointment; faith and love are the best of the trio."

Lavender's eyes grew moist and all the violet in them paled to the gray
of the morning. Her mother smiled

HE LISTENED TO THE BAND
And, according to the actress, the Effect Was Fatal to the King.

The late Mrs. Gilbert, the veteran actress, was a dancer until middle life.
It was quite as a novice that, at the age of 40, she began to appear in speaking parts.

Once, at a reception in Chicago, she said:

was played here in your city, and I was very nervous. I was so very nervous, in fact, that on the first night I made an error that nearly ruined the performance.

"I had a small part, the part of an old nurse. There was a dying king, a villain, and a band of music in the piece, and the band of music was supposed to be very fine. The queen's life, indeed, was to come near being ruined through the strange, sweet seductiveness of this band."

"Nothing but compliments of the band were to be heard on every side."

"Well, in the third act, while the band was playing its best, I had to rush on and cry:

"Stop the music. The king is dead."

"What I did, in my nervousness, was to rush on and cry:

"Stop the music. It has killed the king!"

"Are we almost there—are we almost there?"
Said a dying girl as she drew near home—
"Are these our poplar trees that rear
Their forms so high 'neath the heaven's blue dome?"

The slow, sad words rolled in sonorous measure from floor to rafters, until a solemn hush fell upon all. At this moment America filled the threatening gap, and turned the tide of sadness which seemed setting in. Back in the shadow she rocked to and fro, and with the squeak of her chair the only accompaniment, she sang the old camp meeting hymn, in a voice loud, but tuneful:

"Wassie, Jacob, daylight's a-breakin', Oh, wassie, Jacob, I will not let thee go."

CHAPTER IV.
Toward the close of a raw day in January there was a stir on board—the Cumberland was in sight! Gray and green, the water of the two rivers bleended in a muddy torrent. At the last bend in the Ohio they came in sight of the flotilla. Moored on the bank were the boats, and moving about the shore the pilgrim voyagers. There was a flutter of handkerchiefs, and a hail of welcome as the newcomers glided to a landing-place, and the tired travelers stepped to shore.

Mrs. Blennerhassett's eyes sought but one face in the crowd. Her husband sat on a fallen tree in the background.
His companion, with whom he was in earnest conversation, was a small, blue man, below the medium height, under whose high, pointed forehead dark eyes flashed with mesmerizing power. These,
and the dilated nostrils, were the only signs of excitement. His voice was very low, his manner quiet, with movements restrained, except that he constantly poked one long forefinger in his listener's face. All the vehemence of a strong soul seemed condensed in that gesture.

"A man approached and, bowing, said:
"Col. Burr, our party from the east has come, and word has it that Mrs.
Blennerhassett is with them."

Harmless Blennerhassett rose with a startled exclamation: "My wife—here?"
But that is not our boat! And as he rushed to the landing, where his wife with her little sons and the others were disembarking.

"Welcome, Mavournteen! And you, Mrs. Creighton? And Lavender? Will wonders never cease?"

In the midst of the hurried explanation which followed, Col. Burr approached. He greeted the ladies with a soft cordiality rather fitted to one drawing room than this river bank, where every lingering ray of sun served but to illumine the embracing waters, leaving the snow-plaid boats on either side in dusky gloom.

The leader invited the newly arrived voyagers to supper on his boat, and the time passed delightfully: enlivened by the seductive charm of his manner and conversation. Winslow, too, was a brilliant talker when the spirit moved, and they, with the two elder women, fished wit and wisdom to which the others listened with an admiring attention which was a good fashion of the time.

Later, however, a current of sadness lay underneath the gaiety, and Lavender slipped out, and up to the dock alone.

The moon, low-hung and wan, like a dim torch lighted a waning wreck of clouds. The quiet beauty of the night, and the tallness of waves rocking,
the anchored boat, soothed her—it's polled her forebodings of the uncertain morrow.

"Pardon me—I seem destined to disturb your reveries."

She smiled faintly at Winslow's approach, but made no reply, and for a time they stood together in silence. He was conscious of her mood, with an instinctive delicacy commonly called feminine, but which, when it exists at all in men, is above that of women.
The power of Winslow's personality lay in a happy adaptation, when he so pleased, to the moods of others.

"The moon has unseasonably drawn behind that veil of cloud. Can't I take her place, and share your thoughts? I will be as silent as a confessor, if you command."

"You are very kind, but for your own sake do not open your ears to my burdens. Why, they are heavy for me—and I am a woman!" she concluded, smiling.

"In the name of my sex, I accept the interference."

He leaned against the boat's edge, watching her. Only her profile shone, clear-cut against the background of cloud-swept sky. Winslow was a lover of beauty in the abstract; its poetical value appealed to him, and it was with an interest at once sensuous and impersonal that he studied the girl before him. An almost classical correctness of outline was given warmth and tone by a subtle charm that seemed original with her. This charm lay in the indefinable atmosphere which enveloped her—gave her a unique personality. "She seems so much alive!" was his mental comment upon the girl whose thread of life had become so closely and suddenly entangled with his own.

Meanwhile the object of his thoughts
said: "This has been a happy evening, but I am all the more sad now, realizing that it is our last glimpse of civilized society for many a long day. Tomorrow—ah! what will to-morrow be? Her voice broke, and Winslow hastened to say: "When I left the cabin Col. Burr and Mr. Blennerhassett were in consultation with your mother;
no doubt matters will be arranged as you would wish. I—I am only sorry you are not going farther with us. We
— we have much enjoyed your company."

"And we can never forget your kindness."

There was a short silence as their eyes met. Just then a gentleman came on deck to report that Col. Burr desired audience with Mr. Winslow. Excusing himself, Charles went below.

Descending into the cabin, which served as parlor, he was greeted by Aaron Burr with formal courtesy.

THE LATEST FADS IN SLEEVES.

DESIGNED TO GIVE DISTINCTION TO FALL GOWNS.

Among Those Described.

The best way for the home dressmaker to give distinction to her fall
gowns is by the design of her sleeves.
Below will be found four of the best types to choose from. They may also be combined effectively. Fashion will run in two extremes—the light mous-quetaire sleeve, trimmed with buttons and braid, and the very full sleeve,
with the material set in box plaits and tied over the elbow with a huge knob of ribbon, says the New York World.

The sleeves shown in the illustration
are described as follows:

1. Long full sleeve with deep cavalier cuffs, to be worn with morning gowns, house dresses, separate silk waists, or where long sleeves are required. The cuffs can be made of odds and ends of lace carefully joined or of one good piece of embroidery.

2. All over lace undersleeve with cape of the same material as the dress. The sleeve forms one large puff and a smaller one coming well over the elbow.

3. Three-quarter length sleeve for coats and jackets, the fullest at the shoulder and tight-fitting round the lower part of the arm. The sleeve is of cloth with stitched band

4. A cloth and lace sleeve reaching around the cuff and running up the side of the sleeve. The hands are edged with tiny buttons. The cuff is finished with ruffles of finely plaited cambric.

5. A little below the elbow, the upper part being of cloth, of a rather novel shape, edged around and joined with black velvet. The under sleeve is of rows of lace thickly ruffled with a cuff of the velvet to match the upper part.

and joined to the skirt by a line of velvet or may be pointed or scalloped of edge, says the Detroit Free

The skirt is not shirred full on the yoke, but set on with only "slight fullness, and shaped in the seams, with a far away echo of the princess lines so popular among the grown-ups, and down each side of the front runs a garland or scattered spray design of embroidery, turning at the bottom to round the skirt above a hem or frill.

Or perhaps the embroidery forms a panel down the front, from the yoke,

State Capital Notes

Weekly Budget Gathered by Our Special Correspondent at Madison.

Madison. Confusion has resulted from an apparent mistake in the wording of the primary election law, by which candidates' votes cannot be officially canvassed until the same day as the platform convention, which under the law must meet on September 25. The primary election law provides in section 17, that the state board of canvassers shall meet at the office of the secretary of state at ten o'clock a. m. on the third Tuesday of September next after the September primary. The primaries were held on the first Tuesday of the month and the third Tuesday "next after the primaries" will be the fourth Tuesday of the month, or September 25. This situation causes confusion as to the time specified by the law for the holding of the party platform convention.
On this point of platform conventions
the law provides, in section 22, that
"the candidates for the various state offices, and for senate and assembly nominations, and senators of each political party whose term of office extends beyond the first Monday of January of the next year ensuing shall meet at the capital at 12 o'clock noon on the fourth Tuesday of September after the date on which any primary is held preliminary to any general election. They shall forthwith formulate the state platform of their party."
The primary was held on the first Tuesday of September, and the fourth Tuesday "after the date on which the primary is held" would be the fifth Tuesday of the month,
but there are only four Tuesdays in September this year, and it would consequently appear that the law has not provided for a date for the platform convention this year. However, the party chairman, in the plain intent of the law, have called the party conventions for Tuesday, September 25.
Their propriety and legality, of course, will not be questioned, but until the state board of canvassers meets it will not be officially determined who has the right to sit in conventions and take part in the deliberations in the process of platform making. It is therefore, impossible, to send word to the members of the conventions informing them of their credentials.
Possibly they can be "informally and unofficially" informed before that time, and when they appear at the capital they can get their credentials.

Democrats Indorse Platform.

Wisconsin's Democratic members in convention assembled for the first time under the provisions of the new primary election law adopted the same platform that was constructed at their state convention in Milwaukee in June, re-elected H. B. Hanson, of Wausau, chairman of the state central committee, selected a new committee made W. C. Hawley, of Madison, secretary, and after listening to campaign speeches by John A. Lyleward, of Madison, the nominee for governor,
and Martin L. Lusk, of Janesville, nominee for attorney general, and Col.
George W. Bird, of Madison, advanced, George W. Lewis, of Madison, attempted to secure the adoption of a resolution asking the state to make an effort to induce immigrants to locate in Wisconsin, but it was tabled after a debate.

The following state central committee was elected: First district, T. H.
Hodges, Green; J. J. Cunningham,
Rock; Second, Col. George W. Bird,
Madison; C. H. Smith, Markesan;
Third, Jackson Silbaugh, Vernon; E.
C. Pridler, Iowa; Fourth, Peter Barry,

State University Opens.

The University of Wisconsin begins its fifty-sixth year with largely increased facilities for the instruction of the thousands of students attending, and for the accommodation of the growing number of those who are doing advanced and special research work. There are five new buildings on the campus, either completed or in process of construction. Six professors have been added to the faculty,
as well as 23 new instructors and 29
more assistants in various departments. Many new courses have been added to the curriculum, and various departments have been materially strengthened.

Improves Products of Farm.

E. W. Hunt, of Tetonsville, Mich.,
writes to the college of agriculture, University of Wisconsin, stating that he has seen the circulars in regard to the short course of agriculture and states: "Last winter I undertook to feed a carload of western lambs in accordance with the teachings of the bulletin from the United States department of agriculture, entitled 'Feeding Mutton for Market.' The results were satisfactory as the sheep made good gains and topped the market at seven dollars per hundred."

State Chemists Make Tests.

According to the "contract" which the beet sugar companies have made with their respective patrons, the chemists at the factories who are to analyze the beets furnished by the farmers are to be appointed by the directors of the experiment station at Madison. The work of these chemists will be under the direct supervision of the chemical department of the experiment station, and the patrons of these sugar factories may feel assured that the testing of their beets will be done in a careful manner.

New Glarus Wins Its Point.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company informed the Wisconsin rate commission that it would change the schedule of its night train running from Brodhead to New Glar-us so as to accommodate residents of New Orleans. The train, traveling from Chicago, will be changed from the Illinois Central to the St. Paul at Monticello. Heretofore the St. Paul night train left Monticello for New Glarus before the Illinois Central train from the south arrived at the junction point.

Shift Places in Capitol.

W. T. Bart, of Nollville, has been appointed clerk in the office of the state board of control in the capitol at a salary of $60 a month. Arno Larum has been promoted from assistant chief clerk to chief clerk and H. T. Lerdall from clerk to assistant chief clerk, the former now receiving a salary of $100 a month and the latter $75 a month. The vacancy in the force was caused by the transfer of Chief Clerk M. E. McCaffrey to the position of auditor of the state university at a salary of $1,400 a year.

HEAVY BLOW IN SOUTH

STORM SWEEPS STATES ON GULF OF MEXICO.

LOSSES REACH MILLIONS

Washouts Along the Railroad Lines
Destroy Roadbeds and Tracks, Wind and Water Doing Great Damage to Property.

Louisville, Ky. The tropical landslide, which has been climbing the waters of the Gulf of Mexico and devoting much damage on the coast and far inland, Thursday night whirled through north Alabama in a northeasterly direction at a velocity but slightly less than that recorded in New Orleans during the day. Reports do not indicate any loss of life, but the damage to property was that for times touched by the storm is something enormous. All were communication is seriously discontinued, and in some instances has resulted in cutting off cities completely.

Numerous wa-houts have occurred,
the interruption from this cause in one case extending for 20 miles, Ponca, Okla., where the maximum velocity of wind was probably felt early Thursday morning, reports a property loss of $5,000,000 in the city alone,
and sends rumors of loss of life,
which it is impossible to confirm.

New Orleans furnished the subject of numerous wild rumors, but authority reports from there indicate that while there was considerable damage to property, there had been no loss of life in the city. When between New Orleans and the Gulf are prostrated, and it will be several days before anything can be heard from the vast territory between the Crescent city and the gulf and before anything can be heard from the shipping which is riding out the storm in the open gulf.

FOREIGN MEATS ARE EXEMPT

Inspection Law Does Not Apply to Imported Products.

Washington. The secretary of agriculture has received from the attorney general the text of the important opinion rendered the other day in response to the negative question submitted to him, as to whether or not the meat inspection law passed at the last session of congress applied to meat products imported into the United States from foreign countries.

Mr. Moody held that the provisions of the meat inspection amendments have reference entirely to domestic slaughtering and meat packing establishments, having been passed immediately in response to the message of the president to congress transmitting the Neill Reynolds report of the conditions in the Chicago stockyards and packing houses, and urging the passage of legislation providing adequate inspection of meat and meat food products entering into interstate commerce and for the supervision of the methods of preparing the same.

WEST POINT HAZING STOPPED

Practice of Initiating New Students Entirely Stopped Out.

Washington. No more favorable report of the conditions at the military academy at West Point has been made in recent years to the war department than that of the board of visitors, of which Gen. Horace Porter was president.

In its report, the board says: "The practice of hazing new cadets, at one time prevalent among the older students of the academy, has been effectually stamped out, and we have been informed that no instance of real hazing has come to the attention of the academy authorities during the last three years, or since effective measures were employed for its abolition."

EDITED BY W. H. FITCH.
[All communications and queries regarding this department should be sent to the Editor, Wood County, Wis.]

Gathering Long Island Cranberries.
Wood County, N. Y., Sept. 1, 1906.
The harvesting of cranberries has begun and there is every indication that there will be a large yield.

This year conditions of weather have been and remain conducive to another good yield, 100 bushels in the acre being but a moderate estimate of the anticipated gathering.

The march of S. H. Woodhull, at this place were considerably enlarged during 1901 and 1902, and the expansion is now in being. The same may be said of the Brown and Davis marshes on the 10-acre, so that in all probability there will be upward of 200,000 bushels of berries which will be gathered this autumn.

The crop will doubtless aggregate about 20,000 bushels, or from 2,000 to 3,000, out of which the laboring class will realize well on toward $100,000.

Last year was particularly profitable, because owing to the partial failure of the cranberry crop on Cape Cod and other districts in Massachusetts, and the scarcity of berries, the price of the berries was nearly doubled, reaching 85¢ per barrel at times.

The cranberry growing farmers of Long Island, whose marshes border the Peconic River and the marshes of the Peconic River, were wise enough when speculators sought options on the water supply of their marshes to say no and retain the water for the needs of their cranberries.

For two years they have congratulated themselves upon their position, because by securing the water supply they have been enabled to harvest profitable crops of berries each year.

Frank Trout, Journal.

The American Cranberry Growers' Association.
The late meeting of the American Cranberry Growers' Association was noted for being one of the most successful in its history.

Secretary, Fisher's address was particularly significant and contained much of consequence to growers, dealer and consumer of cranberries.

The tone and tendency of modern or current thought is in the direction of a community of interest and his position on various phases of the industry is believed will work for general good.

As to publicity while not an answer, the opinions of growers favored the publication of information, on the ground that secrecy had an effect of alluring innocent or ignorant investment. While admitting the fact that the secrecy side of the business is not to be accepted by showing the contingencies incident to the culture of cranberries, when the facts have generally known that it costs from $500 to $800 per acre, and a number of years of waiting, considerable action will be checked and curtailed.

A policy of exclusiveness tends to put before the public the successes and not the failures. The path of the cranberry grower is fraught to be one of roses, and devoid of thorns, and enemies to be contended with; unappreciated are such visitations as frosts, fires, floods, fungus diseases, fire worms, fruit worms, tip worms, army worms, crickets, grasshoppers and so on and intuition, peering the grower's brain as the secretary puts it with varied and persistent attacks causing sleepless nights with an empty purse for a pillow.

The fact that cranberries grow wild on comparatively worthless land gives the impression that growers possess a highly valuable holding, but it is not taken into consideration that much expenditure and continued outlay is necessary for removal of brush, briars, noxious weeds and grasses. It is not realized that constant attention and frequent repairs must be given to flood gates and dams, but if these things were known, and more airing given to the trouble it is suggested it will be better for all concerned.

When those who have been spending a lifetime admiring knowing little about the business to compare notes is deemed wise, and as the experience of others is needed, those should be a giving as well as getting of it.

Compunctious cranberry growers as a class on their intelligence, it should be remembered, no less in an age of progress, and reminded of our indebtedness to the contribution of inventions of Morse and Edison and of reported discovery of Columbus, which make it possible for other denizens than Indians.

It is therefore urged to keep up with the procession and appreciate the dignity of the agricultural class becoming more and more prominent. That the wealth created is dug from the soil and not stolen, and in extent during the last two years surpassed the output of mines of gold silver and copper since discovery of Columbus.

Regarding crop conditions the matter of statistics is considered and the plan adopted of using percentages based on a normal crop, a system used by the United States Department of Agriculture, and for purpose of comparison the following is submitted: New England and Long Island 450,000 bushels; New Jersey and Long Island 400,000 bushels; West 100,000 bushels; total 1,450,000 based on the information at time of meeting the crop of New England would be 400,000 bushels, or 120,000 in excess of last years short crop.

Besides the above the secretary spoke instructively regarding crop conditions, that up to the first week in August there was general indication of a fair crop the country over. There were no water-killing but May frosts did more or less damage on unweeded bogs in all sections. He took up the matter of late flooding which is believed to be a lighter materialization of fruit buds, and was disappointing in destroying the eggs of the fruit worm as it was expected according to experience and scientific

Our Candidate For Sheriff.
We present herewith to the readers of the Tribune a picture of Julius Welch of Marshfield, the man whom the democrats nominated for sheriff at the September primaries. He is not only a good looking fellow but he is a good fellow, mentally, morally and physically. Mr. Welch is engaged in the real estate business at Marshfield where he has lived for a long number of years and is well known. He ran for the office of sheriff two years ago, and also his friends stood by him until he went down in defeat with the rest of the democratic candidates. Mr. Welch

Supply of 1906.
Greater publicity has been given to the matter of the cranberry crop, this season than usual on account of the peculiar positions of the distributors, and circulars and letters have been numerous and vigorous in setting forth the respective standpoint of different operators. This is reported to have had a marked effect, and from the case is truly understood it is thought the situation will become a more normal one.

The policy of cooperative action brought out drastic efforts to demonstrate the fact of individual channels as efficient agencies in moving crop, and lively competition was the result of the agitation.

An endeavor to supply an early demand placed on the market, that of a light color which has given occasion to the reports of all, and a vigorous communication from one of the growers of Cape Cod shows a strong feeling on the subject, which it is hoped will be received with a spirit of dispassionate consideration of the situation, as it is only by such a course that real practical results can be obtained, and it each one will do all at command, then will the whole situation be benefited.

To point out specifically the right way and the practice of it is one of the problems given for solution and all earnest efforts should be applied and for this reason the contribution to the subject published in the Wisconsin Tribune is of great importance. The chief growing districts of the East are notable. We are aware of the magnitude of the undertaking and seemingly small potency of single effort, but none the less, to make the subject a matter of concern would seem urgent.

As to the actual crop a fair view would seem to indicate an increased yield over that of last year, but not excessive for the needs of the country. In fact such a supply as would give to grower, dealer and consumer, a satisfactory season when handled along sound business lines.

In justice to all who it should be stated that the estimates of the crop in the absence of actual inventory must be largely conjectured but that whatever it may actually be, the main thing is to endeavor to arrive at the current relations, and the harmonious adjustment thereof, which adjustment of a general character is as trusted will lead to particular application and is offered as being pertinent under the circumstances, in promoting a concordant spirit of fair dealing in every case.

The following are the views of Franklin P. Marsh in regard to immature fruit:

I must enter an earnest protest against this picking and shipping of half grown and unripe fruit. One of the buyers informed me that it can't be shipped. He should have said, "They can't be shipped. Certainly such old reliable firms as French & Co. of New York and the reputable firms in Boston do not want such fruit, and it is some of these philanthropic buyers, that are so strenuous in their efforts On Behalf of the Dear Growers, had one spark of consideration for the best interest of the growers as well as their own lasting and substantial welfare, they would not have done this. The buyers, some of them, informed me that they were compelled to ship this fruit, they contracted for the same and when they saw the fruit was so late in ripening, they wanted to delay the picking but the growers forced them to take the fruit. Now I wish some of those who forced the buyers to take the fruit, would stand forth and corroborate this statement. I don't believe that when the grower fully understands and appreciates the tremendous growth of this kind of fruit in 10 days from the time they begin picking, my large grower will find it at all to his interest to pick this half grown and entirely unripe fruit.

Alas I do not wish to criticize the grower in this matter, as there are some circumstances that may compel one to sell early, but must aver every grower to look into this matter, and plead with him to consider the damage done to the splendid reputation of the Cape Cod cranberry, our chief asset as growers; the great injury to the demand, for people buying and cooking such fruit must condemn the same and thousands of would be consumers become disgusted with this half-bred and wholesome berry. Further don't fail to consider the financial loss you are incurring in the matter of quantity as well as quality. I am greatly in hopes that Judge Guyton's articles, which I understand are to appear in your paper, may set forth fully this last phase of this important matter. Brother Cranberry Growers, can't we devise some practical method of stopping this cheapness? I think we can! Just further views of the subject, that the plain duty of all may be known, and intelligent action made practical, and the desired and accomplished, thru the concerted cooperation of those responsible, which to a certain extent would include everyone connected with the industry.

The new meat inspection labels are unique. They consist of a thin piece of gelatin or like substance about one and one quarter inches square. On the label is printed in blue letters something like this: U. S. Inspected and Passed No. 1. The inspector simply signs the little tag on the piece of meat and the moisture makes it stick. In a short time the gelatin dissolves and the blue letters remain on the meat. It can't be removed except by cutting it off and is absolutely harmless.

Disturbed The Peace.
Henry Wachts was up before Justice Brown on Saturday on a charge of being drunk and disorderly in the opera house. The judge made the ante three dollars and Henry called him and him for the fall timber.

The Modern Woodmen of America will hold an entertainment at their hall tomorrow evening. There will be music, speeches, recitations, etc., and all members of the order and their wives are urged to be present.

Troubles Commence.
Wm. is already having trouble over his street railway, work upon which has been commenced. The Record of that city says: "There has been a controversy between the members of the council and the officers of the Wausau Street Railway company as to the rails to be used in the construction of the line to be put in this fall. The franchise says that the company shall use the 'standard' best and most improved rails. The company has secured four-inch T-rails and scattered them along the right of way. The claim is made that the rails are second hand and that they are too low to allow the streets on which they are laid to be paved in a satisfactory manner. It is also claimed that while the T-rail is not particularly objectionable they should be not less than six inches high and that seven inches would be preferable. The matter is to be taken up by the common council.

Not This Seeking.
"Well, well," remarked Jigley, addressing Jagley's black eye. "How did you meet with the accident?"
"I didn't," replied Jagley. "It met with me."—Baltimore Sun.
